KEY TERMS

Domain Name: The unique name that identifies an Internet site. Technically, the domain name is a name that identifies an IP address. To most of us, it simply means www.yourname.com. Simply stated, domain names allow people to find your web site by name rather than by numerical address.

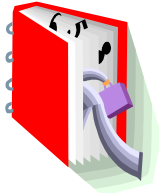

Internet Protocol (IP) Numbers (IP addresses): A unique number used for identifying machines that are connected to the Internet. They look something like this 123.456.789.101.

ISP (Internet Service Provider): A company that provides access to the Internet in some form through a modem, DSL, or cable connection.

Domain Name System (DNS): When you buy a domain, say www.yourname.com, it is nothing until you get it hosted somewhere and until that host assigns a number to your domain. The DNS relates the name to the number.

E-Mail POP Account: An actual e-mail account on your web host's e-mail server. POP stands for Post Office Protocol.

Registration: The process through which individuals and organizations obtain a domain name for a specified period of time, or as long as the required fees are paid.

Key terms will help you understand the internet

Host (Name Server):

This refers to an Internet company that has the required servers and software to connect domain names to IP numbers so that your site can be viewed by the public when they type your domain in their browser window. Basically this is where you house your site.

Control Panel: An online package of tools permitting easy website management and editing.
